

Table of Contents

---

Contents	Page
Introduction	1
Alternative Strategies for Selling a Practice	2
Advantages of Selling the Entire Practice Outright
Advantages of Bringing an Associate into the Practice and Selling All or a Portion of the Practice to the Associate
Common Mistakes in Associate Buy-ins and Buy-outs	8
No Agreement Concerning the Date of Purchase
No Agreement Concerning Price
Changing Your Mind About the Price
Establishing a Salary Deferral Rather than a Total Price
Selecting the Wrong Kind of Associateship Arrangement
Selecting the Wrong Associate
Inappropriately Compensating the Associate
Lack of Effort to Make it Work
Clarification of Terms	15
Plan Ahead for Best Results	16
Step 1 — Identify Goals and Preferences
Step 2 — Evaluate Personal and Practice Strengths
Step 3 — Seek Counsel of Professional Advisors
Step 4 — Decide How and When to Proceed
Step 5 — Establish Your Work Plan and Timetable
Selecting the Associateship Form that Fits Your Needs	22
Cost
Risk of Potential Liability
Protection of Owner
Practice Value and Price	26
Finalizing the Price: When Should it Be Done?
Defining What Is Being Bought and Sold
Establishing a Price
Minority Interests
Terms of the Buy-in or Buy-Out	33

Contents, continued	Page
Compensating the Associate	37
Percentage of Production
Percentage of Collections
Payment Based on Time
Flat Rent
Combination Methods
Level of Compensation
Establishing a Fair Percentage Level, Salary or Combination
Establishing a Flat Rental Rate
The Job's Not Done	45
Suggested References	46